ORDERING INFORMATION & TERMS

February 2017

Dear Model Railroader,

Welcome to the February 2017 Atlas ASMC consumer edition of product Announcements and Arrivals. Each individual All Scales Monthly Catalog (ASMC) is based on the bi-annual All Scales Catalog (ASC) that is released in January and July of each year.

The All Scales Catalog (ASC) provides an overview of Atlas planned product announcements and arrivals for the following six months. The All Scales Monthly Catalog (ASMC) focuses in on each month's planned and specified announcements and allows consumers to place guaranteed pre-orders with their local hobby shop for those specific products by a given date. If you need assistance finding a dealer near you, don't forget our Hobby Store Locator! Check out the locator at <http://shop.atlasrr.com/storeLocator.aspx>.

Both catalogs are widely distributed and shared with thousands of dedicated Atlas consumer fans in accordance with their scale preference. This distribution is accomplished through targeted electronic messaging as well as via handouts at shows throughout the year. You can ensure that you receive the latest Atlas news and offers, in your preferred scale(s), delivered directly to your email inbox by visiting www.atlasrr.com and signing up for our email newsletter – the Atlas Insider.

February's edition of the ASMC is filled with exciting news for HO, N and O modelers. HO modelers get double the pleasure this month, as we announce our 2nd run of HO Modern Commuter Trains in the AMT scheme, along with the arrival of the NJ TRANSIT HO Modern Commuter Series. A few additional highlights are the HO & N Trash Flats and Containers and Airslide Hoppers in O scale. You'll find all of those wonderful models and more inside, as well as arriving freight cars, locomotives and track in all scales.

Sincerely,
Joe Kolnoski, Vice President of Sales

A MODERN COMMUTER

BY • ROB PISANI

Atlas announced in June 2016 that we had tooled a complete modern commuter train from locomotive to cab car. This project is definitely “outside the box” for Atlas in HO-scale in that it is both a modern prototype and a complete passenger train. Inspiration came from the prototype locomotive and multi-level commuter cars, which have been operating close to home for many Atlas employees since 2012.

Several of us in the research and development department at Atlas took an interest in the new ALP-45DP locomotives from the moment they arrived at Port Newark, NJ in 2011. These “dual mode” locomotives provide the same basic function as the venerable EMD FL9 did 55 years earlier, with one exception. An FL9 drew electric power from a third rail when not operating as a diesel, whereas the ALP-45DP draws electric power from overhead catenary via a rooftop pantograph.

NJ Transit ordered a total of 35 ALP-45DP locomotives. All were built at Bombardier’s plant in Kassel, Germany in late 2010, arriving in New Jersey early in 2011. While they share lines with NJ Transit’s Bombardier-built ALP-46 electrics, the ALP-45 is actually quite a bit larger and heavier. Each dual mode is 71’6” long and weighs approximately 288,000 pounds, with an axle loading of 72,000 pounds. When in diesel mode, the ALP-45 is powered by two Caterpillar 3512C diesels which generate a total of 4,200hp. It is capable of handling an 8 car train of multilevel cars in diesel model. In electric mode, the ALP-45 performs similar to NJ Transit’s ALP-46 electric locomotives, and it is capable of handling a 10-car train.

Unfortunately the service for which these versatile dual mode units were purchased has yet to materialize, even in 2016. It has been well-publicized that Amtrak’s pair of single track North River Tunnels between New Jersey and Midtown Manhattan are operating at maximum capacity during weekday rush-hour periods. These tunnels carry electric-powered trains of both Amtrak and NJ Transit into and out of New York’s Penn Station seven days per week. They are also badly in need of major repair; the type of which is not possible without major service disruption. A second set of tunnels under the North (Hudson) River was to have been built, and this would have permitted trains from various NJ Transit diesel-only routes to have direct access to Manhattan. This project was scrapped for a number of reasons before construction began and alternatives are being studied now. Local politics aside, the biggest drawback of the original plan was that trackage in the new tunnels would have terminated at a new station served only by NJ Transit, with no physical connection to any other lines. This design was operationally inflexible and not conducive to future growth. The new plan will hopefully allow for shared Amtrak-NJ Transit operation on four tracks (two old and two new) under the North River.

NJ Transit’s Multi-level commuter cars were also built by Bombardier, but were constructed a bit closer to home at plants in both Quebec, Canada and upstate New York. There are three primary car types in service on NJ transit. These are classified as the standard trailer car, trailer car with toilet and cab car. Cab cars are required for push-pull operation and contain all of the controls and safety features needed to operate a train with the locomotive pushing from the rear of the consist. Depending on their configuration, the multilevel cars can each handle between 127 and 142 passengers. A number of multi-level cars currently wear slogans which were designed by NJ Transit to raise safety awareness. Atlas is currently offering cars decorated with four such slogans.

TRAIN CONSIST FROM ATLAS

NJ Transit was instrumental in getting this project completed. They provided technical drawings of all equipment in question and also provided access for field measurement and detailed photography of both the unique locomotives and the multi-level cars they haul on a daily basis. This project was actually started in late 2012, but became stalled as other projects and production issues took priority over it. We took a second look at the project in 2015 and decided the time was right to move ahead. Customer response has been stronger than expected, with many now asking for N and even O-scale versions of this modern commuter train.

NJ Transit also graciously allowed Atlas and ESU (Loksound) to make a recording of an actual ALP-45DP locomotive. The recordings were made in June 2016 with the assistance of NJ Transit mechanical department personnel. All of the signature sounds of this unique locomotive were captured, including the twin Caterpillar prime movers starting and stopping, the changeover from diesel to electric mode, the electronic bell, and the shrill “choked” NJ Transit K5LA air horn (common on many NJ Transit locomotives). Recordings were also made of the announcements and warning sounds in the multi-level commuter cars.

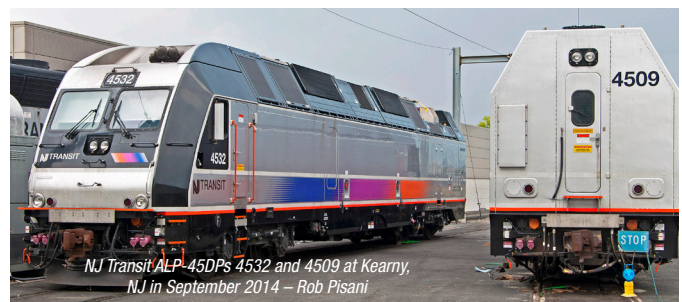

Customers who purchase the Gold version of the locomotive and operate on a DCC-equipped layout will have access to these sounds automatically. We believe Atlas is offering a “first” with regard to a commuter cab car model that is truly DCC-ready. The multi-level cab car includes a provision for a speaker with requisite openings built into the chassis. In addition, the circuit board in the cab car includes a 21-pin socket to facilitate the installation of a DCC decoder. ESU will be offering a sound file that will allow users to control the lighting (headlight, ditch lights and red marker lights) and sound features that would be typically found in a cab car. This includes the usual horn and electronic bell, as well as door chimes and station announcements.

In September 2016 Atlas secured a license to reproduce the paint scheme of Montreal’s AMT (Agence métropolitaine de transport) commuter operation on these models. AMT is the only other commuter agency that purchased the ALP-45DP locomotive model.

They are also one of only two other current uses of the Bombardier multi-level commuter car (with the other being Maryland’s MARC operation). These models are featured as an announcement in the February 2017 Atlas All Scales Monthly Catalog.

The first NJ Transit production run of this modern commuter train consist is arriving in February 2017. Customers who are interested but have not yet placed an order should contact their dealer as soon as possible. There are still limited quantities available as of this writing.
