ORDERING INFORMATION & TERMS

June 2017

Dear Model Railroader,

Welcome to the June 2017 Atlas ASMC consumer edition of product Announcements and Arrivals. Each individual All Scales Monthly Catalog (ASMC) is based on the bi-annual All Scales Catalog (ASC) that is released in January and July of each year.

The All Scales Catalog (ASC) provides an overview of Atlas planned product announcements and arrivals for the following six months. The All Scales Monthly Catalog (ASMC) focuses in on each month's planned and specified announcements and allows consumers to place guaranteed pre-orders with their local hobby shop for those specific products by a given date. If you need assistance finding a dealer near you, don't forget our Hobby Store Locator! Check out the locator at <http://shop.atlasrr.com/storeLocator.aspx>.

Both catalogs are widely distributed and shared with thousands of dedicated Atlas consumer fans in accordance with their scale preference. This distribution is accomplished through targeted electronic messaging as well as via handouts at shows throughout the year. You can ensure that you receive the latest Atlas news and offers, in your preferred scale(s), delivered directly to your email inbox by visiting www.atlasrr.com and signing up for our email newsletter – the Atlas Insider.

June's edition of the ASMC is full of products that discerning HO, N and O modelers desire. A few of the highlights are announcements of the N Master® VO-1000 Locomotive, as well as the HO Trainman® RS-32/36. We didn't forget about freight cars - there's plenty of exciting freight to keep layouts cool all summer - including the Trainman® N 5250 Covered Hopper, Trainman® HO 1937 AAR 40' Box Car Kit & Master® O ACF® 8,000 Gallon Tank Car. You'll find all of those wonderful models and more inside, as well as arriving freight cars, locomotives and track in all scales.

Sincerely,
Joe Kolnoski
Vice President of Sales

Atlas O Interbellum Freight Cars

Review and Photos by George Brown

I've always had a fascination for freight trains that ran in the years between WWI and WWII. But not until the past few years were a variety of affordable scale freight cars with prototypes from these years readily available in O gauge from several manufacturers. I've limited this review to examples of the Steam Era Classics cars from Atlas O that will negotiate 3-rail O31 curves and whose prototypes were built in the teens, '20s, and '30s.

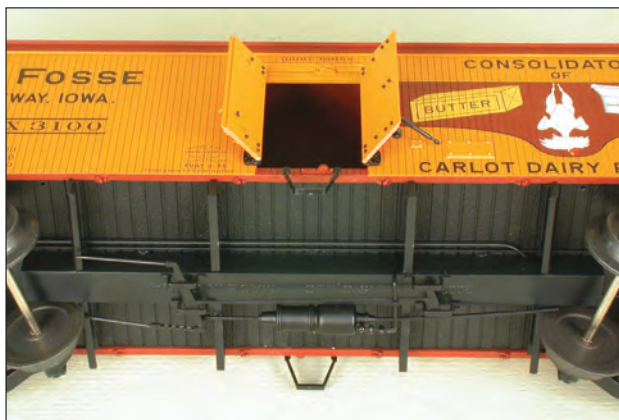

- #8808 NYC USRA 40' composite gondola; $54.95
- #8690 NYC USRA 40' single-sheathed boxcar; $49.95
- #8055 T. N. Fosse 36' wood reefer; $59.95
- #8155 PFE 40' rebuilt reefer; $59.95
- #8752 CNJ 1923 ARA 40' steel boxcar; $59.95
- #8188 Pabst-ett 40' wood reefer; $62.95
- #8664 Bell 8,000 gallon tank car; $59.95
- #6768 CNJ 55-ton fishbelly hopper, flat end; $49.95

Each of these cars is available in 3-rail or 2-rail and in several common carrier or private liveries. Atlas O offers additional types of Steam Era Classics cars such as the USRA double-sheathed boxcar, 40' AAR steel boxcar, 70-ton covered hopper, and 11,000 gallon tank car, but they either need wider than O31 curves or their prototypes were built in the 1940s.

Except for the die-cast 50-ton fishbelly hopper, each of the 3-rail cars I reviewed had a molded ABS plastic body with a die-cast metal floor or chassis, metal grab irons or ladders, die-cast stirrups, detailed plastic or metal underframe, and separate brake system components. On each specific type of car, such as the ARA boxcar, some of these details vary according to the railroad that owned the prototype car. Reefers and the USRA single-sheathed boxcar have wire coupler cut bars on each end. All Steam Era Classics cars ride on die-cast sprung Bettendorf or Andrews trucks (depending on the car type) with Delrin axle bearings, separate brake shoes, die-cast articulated tinplate couplers, and molded air hoses with valves. These trucks can accept the optional Adjust-A-Coupler hardware from Atlas O, and additional provisions exist for mounting scale draft gear boxes and couplers to the body. On 3-rail cars, mounting scale couplers do not necessitate replacement or destructive modification of their trucks.

Paint, lettering, and graphics on all the Steam Era Classics cars are nothing less than spectacular, even on those decorated in the monochromatic black or Tuscan posite gondola and the single-sheathed 40' boxcar are USRA standard designs that used wood to reduce construction time and cost during WWI. Both cars are available in four numbers for each road name. On our Atlas model of the NYC gondola, the die-cast floor is painted a natural wood color that contrasts nicely with the black body. Depending on the boxcar's prototype, the Atlas single-sheathed (also called outside braced) boxcars have doors that model either wood or steel and also different that characterized pre-WWII common carrier liveries. And on the billboard reefers, the precision application of the multiple colors and graphics proudly demonstrates the capabilities of contemporary pad printing technology.

Prototypes for both the 40' com-styles of steel ends. Our PMcK&Y (NYC) car has wooden doors.

The 36' reefer models cars that the Great American Car Co. built for Cudahy Packing Co. in 1925. Doors and ice hatches open and latch on separately applied and realistically operating hardware, as do the doors and hatches on the other Steam Era Classics reefers. Ice hatch styles and under-floor beams or truss rods vary depending on the prototype of the specific car. Two car numbers are available in each owner's livery.

In the late 1930s, owners of 40' wood reefers began extensively rebuilding and modernizing their cars that were originally built in the early 1920s. Visible elements of this modernization included steel roofs with raised wood platforms around plug-type ice hatches, ladders in place of side and end grab irons, and modern hand brake equipment that superseded the vertical brake shafts and hand wheels. The Western Pacific/Pacific Fruit Express car I reviewed is available in eight road numbers and models rebuilt 40' wood reefer cars commonly seen in mainline consists well into the 1940s.

Steel 40' boxcars from the American Railway Association design of 1923 were built in large numbers as the Pennsy Class X-29, as well as on several other eastern roads. Individual models of the 40' 1923 ARA boxcar have flat or corrugated ends and doors as well as other detail variations according to the prototype road name. For example, our Tuscan CNJ car has flat ends and doors. Four car numbers are available for each road name.

Thousands of 40' wood reefers painted as billboards rolled on the rails in the '20s and '30s, and these types of cars have also proven extremely popular with O gauge railroaders. Pullman built the prototype of the Pabst-ett reefer for the Northern Refrigerator Car Co. in 1930. The USRA style of fishbelly underframe and vertical hand brake shaft are recognizable traits of these cars.

The prototype for the Bell Oil car was the 8,000 gallon Type 27 riveted tank car from American Car and Foundry in the 1930s. On the Atlas O model, a die-cast frame carries the molded ABS tank body and has separate wire grab irons and stirrups as well as detailed brake hardware. Wire handrails complement the molded details on the tank and dome. Four car numbers are available for each owner.

Initially built in the late '30s, the 55-ton fishbelly hopper had flat or peaked ends, according to its owner. The model's die-cast body provides its heft of over two pounds, along with some solid tracking characteristics. A removable plastic coal load caps our CNJ flat end hopper, and like the other Steam Era Classics cars, brake system components are separate as are the metal grab irons and ladders. Additionally, spring-loaded hopper doors swing open. Two or four car numbers are available, depending on the road name.

All of the cars we tested track flawlessly on my traditional tubular track and Lionel O22 switches. Except for the cast fishbelly hopper, each car weighs between 1 lb and 1 lb 6 oz, depending on its type. This weight makes for excellent tracking but can put quite a drawbar load on a locomotive when traveling up a grade. The combined weight of the eight cars in this review is almost 11 lbs. But because of the low friction Delrin axle bearings and smooth wheels, these handsome and profusely detailed cars pull amazingly easy. Behind my scale Southern Pacific MK-5 or Union Pacific USRA Mike, the Atlas O Steam Era Classics cars are a perfect visual fit. The only thing more I could want from these cars is perhaps several more of them.
