H0 Scale UP[†] Heritage Fleet Cars

A key part of Union Pacific's public relations programs are the 48 historic passenger cars that make up the "Heritage Fleet." Many were originally purchased for the famed City Streamliners, and have been carefully restored to full operating condition. Today, they're finished in a modern version of the famed Armour Yellow scheme, and carry names of important cities, earlier trains and key people in the railroad's long history. In service these rolling goodwill ambassadors travel system-wide and beyond, often behind UP's restored steam and diesel locos, to attend a wide range of public and special events every year.

GUESS WHO'S CELEBRATING 40 YEARS?

Exclusive Amtrak® 40th Anniversary HO Model Trains

In case you hadn't heard, Amtrak® hit the big 4-0 and is making it one to remember! For the first time ever, Amtrak is proud to be offering exclusive HO model trains in celebration of this milestone. We've teamed up with Walthers so you can join in the celebration by running your own Amtrak Exhibit Train or adding a Heritage scheme P42 to the point of one of your trains. Better yet, do both! Amtrak is happy to announce another first: Your favorite single-level cars in the current Phase IVb scheme. At long last, everything to model a present-day Eastern long distance train or Northeast Regional is being made available, and for the West Coast modelers that means Phase IVb Baggage cars can now accompany your consists. This limited run of models is only available through Amtrak. Pre-orders are now being taken online; expected delivery scheduled for late Fall 2011. For more information, head on over to www.amtrak40th.com or come see us aboard the Exhibit Train.

Now taking pre-orders, only at:

Did You Know?

Houses in the real world develop character after they've been lived in a while. While each is unique, some details can be seen in almost any neighborhood, even where yards are small and space is tight.

Most homeowners take great pride in their property, carefully cultivating green lawns, pulling weeds, planting shrubs and trees or decorative flowers in the front and backyards. The back may also have a vegetable or flower garden, or if space is limited, containers and flowerboxes will be used. Backyards may also share space with play equipment, doghouses, small storage sheds and similar details.

If the owner isn't in a position to do much, or the house has been empty for a time, nature takes over. The grass goes without mowing or watering, weeds start to move in, leaves are left standing and litter blows in nooks and crannies.

Using your imagination and some of the many scenery supplies available today, you can build a spotless suburban area, or one on the "wrong side of the tracks." A ride around town will turn up additional ideas too, such as fences, yard lighting and other decorations. And be sure to add some figures working, playing or just relaxing in the yard for the finishing touch of detail.

Did You Know?

Seeing lights on in buildings brings any layout to life. Adding them to new or existing buildings is easy too.

On plastic models, paint the interior walls black or a dark color to keep light from shining through.

Plan where lights will be installed - bulbs can get hot enough to damage wood or plastic, so give them some space.

Install lights on the ceiling of the building. This keeps bulbs away from windows where they might be seen, and reduces the number of bulbs needed.

Blank out some windows with dark paper from the inside so it looks like lights are only on in a few rooms. Taller buildings may need floors to block light too.

Make sure buildings are tight against your layout surface so light doesn't leak at the base.
