ON THE COVER

Cities big and small were eager to get railroads built in the beginning, even agreeing to put the main line right down the center of Main Street if need be. What seemed a good idea quickly became a nightmare, as hordes of pedestrians, teamsters and trains passed inches apart. Change came quickly in the early 1900s, and with nowhere left to go but up, the overpass and elevated rights-of-way became a fixture of rails and roads all across the country. A must-have structure for HO cities, the new Cornerstone Urban Overpass Series brings you four detailed kits (shown here are the Urban Steel Overpass and Elevated Commuter Station, details on page 14) that can be mixed and matched to set the scene. And, check inside this issue for the engines, rolling stock, accessories and more from your favorite era.

Things are looking up!

Life was sure a lot different when dirt trails and rails ran side by side through here. Wasn't long before the trains and traffic were getting just a little too close for comfort, and then the first horseless carriages chugged into town.... By that time there were so many buildings in the way that the only space left was actually above the existing tracks. Raising railroads and lowering streets might be a big job in the real world, but the new Cornerstone® Urban Overpass Series simplify construction on HO layouts old or new. Typical of structures in daily use for decades that are still found in cities of every size, check out these newest members of the Engineered Bridge Series at your participating dealer, along with locos, vehicles, rolling stock and more from your favorite era.

A Note on Availability

At Walthers, we strive to provide you with the widest variety of product possible. In order to achieve this goal, we maintain significant inventory on site. Despite our best efforts to have every item you could possibly need in house at all times, it is not realistically possible to do so. For your convenience, we do our best to promote items that are in stock and to clearly label other items—those that are new and available for Advance Reservations or items that are low in stock and have Limited Quantities Available when the Flyer goes to press. At times, we experience a quick sell out on a particular item or unexpected demand for an item that we believed to have sufficient stock in house. In many cases, items can be back ordered for future delivery. In other cases, we are unable to secure more of a particular item. For the most up to date availability information, we encourage you to check walthers.com, email us at custserv@walthers.com or call our Customer Service Team at 1-800-4-TRAINS.

Please know that we appreciate your support of both Walthers and your Local Hobby Shop. We are committed to making this Flyer a valuable part of your model railroading.
